Buzz about new mosquito shield

If you are lucky enough to own a holiday home over on the continent, you'll know that mosquito bites can be a constant pain right throughout the cooling autumn months.

Instead of spraying yourself with litres of insect repellent, you can beat the bites by wearing an ingenious new product that creates a protective shield around your body.

Arnywear, which can be worn as a necktie, bandana, wrist or ankle strap, has a fragrant lavender scent and can be washed up to 20 times. The material can also be used as a placemat, throw or kaftan. It's even available as a teddy bear for the tots.

Its 'intelligent fabric' creates a kind of forcefield that repels mosquitoes, whenever it's moved. The material emits a natural extract which creates a mosquito-free zone of 50cms all around the body.

It has been clinically tested and proven by the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and can also be worn by children.
